Recently Adopted Final Rules

The Commission may adopt or reconsider a proposed rule after the 30-day comment period has expired. Any comments received are considered and the rule may be adopted as “final” if no substantive changes are made. Any substantive change require the proposed rule to be re-published for another 30-day comment period. A rule becomes “final” after it is formally adopted by the Commission and published in the Texas Register. The rule is effective 20 days following filing for publication. The following rules were adopted as final at the most recent Commission meeting. “N” denotes a new rule; “A” denotes amendments to an existing rule; and “R” denotes repeal of an existing rule. Readopted rules with no changes.
