National Volunteer Appreciation

National Volunteer month in the United States takes place in April. This month is dedicated to honoring all of the volunteers in our communities as well as encouraging volunteerism throughout the month. On behalf of the Commission, our employees and myself I want to thank all of the volunteers who strive daily to ensure Texas state-chartered credit union members receive safe and sound financial services. Your efforts, although largely behind the scenes, are important in the lives of the $3.8 million reported Texas credit union members at the end of 2018. Please accept our sincere thanks for your work as you strive to continue to meet the highest expectations of the membership you represent.

Early Stage Delinquency

After several years of strong loan growth some credit unions have begun to experience an increase in early stage delinquency, particularly in the 30 to 59-day category. Early stage delinquencies can be an indicator of future increases in reportable delinquency and higher loan losses. In conjunction with delinquency reporting at board meetings, credit union management is encouraged to provide its board members with monthly trend reports for past due loans in the 30 to 59 day delinquency category, and engage in a discussion of collection efforts on these loans. Credit union officials have a responsibility to provide adequate administrative oversight of operations, which includes ensuring that appropriate action is taken to identify and address any adverse loan quality trends. Ultimately, rises in early stage delinquencies can result in increased losses which can impact the financial strength and integrity of a credit union.

If loan quality ratios decline, identifying and addressing the primary causes (loosened underwriting standards, limited collection activity, increased lending to lower credit tiers, and/or indirect lending issues, etc.), is essential to control and manage credit risk. The officials and management of a credit union should ensure that lending activities are monitored and consistent with the credit union's overall business strategies and risk tolerances.

New NCUA Chair Rodney Hood; Board Member Harper

On Monday April 8, 2019 President Trump appointed Rodney Hood chairman of the National Credit Union Administration Board. Hood, who succeeds Mark McWatters, has had previous experience on the board serving from November 2005 until August 2009 and has stated his focus on capital and liquidity issues, cybersecurity, consumer protection and access to credit for the unbanked as well as modernizing the federal credit union charter. Former Chair McWatters remains on the board for at least his remaining term ending in August 2019. However, it is not unusual for board members to remain until an appointee has been named to replace them.

Board Member Todd Harper was sworn in April 8th, 2019 and is the first board member appointed to have formerly been an NCUA staffer. Previously Mr. Harper served as director of NCUA's Office of Public and Congressional Affairs, and later was chief policy advisor to former Chairs Matz and Metsger.

Commissioner Kolhoff congratulates Chairman Hood and Board Member Harper while expressing his thanks to former Chair McWatters. "I want to thank Board Member McWatters for his and his staff's efforts to strengthen the dialogue between NCUA and state prudential regulators over his tenure as chair. I look forward to continuing those efforts with the new Board to help ensure the strength of the credit union industry."

The most recent appointments mark the first time since April of 2016 the NCUA Board had all appointments seated.
