Commissioner Kolhoff Resigns

The Texas Credit Union Commission has accepted the resignation of its top executive, John J. Kolhoff, to be effective July 15, 2022. After serving as the Department's Commissioner for three and one-half years, Kolhoff decided to resign to pursue other opportunities.

Chairman Jim Minge made the following statement on behalf of the nine-member Commission: "We appreciate the Commissioner's outstanding leadership during an unprecedented time in our history, and we wish him well in his future endeavors. Despite the pandemic and other challenges, the Department made significant progress during his tenure. We are well-positioned to continue moving forward. The future of credit unions in Texas is bright."

The Commission has initiated the plan for succession as outlined in its policy manual. Deputy Commissioner Robert W. Etheridge will assume the role of Interim Commissioner as of July 16, 2022 until the position is filled. A vacancy posting for this position is forthcoming to the Department's website, www.tud.texas.gov.

Reminder - Annual Bond Coverage Review

In accordance with 7 TEX. ADMIN. CODE §91.510, the board of directors are required to annually review its fidelity and other insurance coverage to assess the continuing adequacy, and if there is a need for any supplemental coverage. Additionally, Part 713.2 of the NCUA Rules and Regulations requires the board of directors of each federally insured credit union, after review, to pass a resolution approving the purchase or renewal of fidelity bond coverage and delegate one member of the board, who is not an employee of the federally insured credit union, to sign the purchase or renewal agreement and all attachments.

Early Stage Delinquency

After over two years of experiencing the impact of the COVID pandemic, the aggregate financial performance of Texas state-chartered credit unions is strong. Capital strength for the Texas industry is sound, and as of March 31, 2022 earnings, loan delinquency and charge-off ratios reached their best levels in over seven years.

Regardless of the positive financial trends being recognized, the current economic environment elevates the potential for rising delinquencies and loan losses. To timely identify and mitigate any emerging loan quality risks, credit unions are encouraged to monitor their loan delinquency trends closely. Early stage delinquent loans are an excellent indicator of future increases in reportable delinquency and higher loan losses. In conjunction with delinquency reporting at monthly board meetings, credit union management is encouraged to provide its board members with monthly trend reports for past due loans in the 30 to 59-day delinquency category and engage in a discussion of collection efforts on these loans. Credit union officials have a responsibility to provide adequate administrative oversight of operations, which includes ensuring that appropriate action is taken to identify and address any adverse loan quality trends. Ultimately, rises in early stage delinquencies can result in increased losses which can impact the financial strength and integrity of a credit union.
