Effective Communication with the Department

State-chartered credit unions in Texas play a vital role in serving their members, and the Credit Union Department is here to support you through effective and efficient communication.

We have noticed that credit unions occasionally send questions directly to the Department's main office. To ensure you receive the most timely and accurate response, we recommend contacting your assigned examiner first for routine inquiries and examination-related matters.

This is especially important during active examination periods. Your examiner is your primary point of contact and is best positioned to address questions efficiently while maintaining a productive working relationship with your credit union.

For specific regulatory or administrative matters, credit unions are encouraged to contact the Credit Union Department directly.

Examples of topics include:

- Field of membership expansions or amendments
- Bylaw amendments
- Mergers
- Operating fee questions
- Call reports

Department staff are available to assist with these specialized areas and can guide you through the appropriate process or connect you with the correct team member. Reaching out to the right contact saves time for everyone and helps the Department continue providing the high level of service Texas credit unions deserve.

Thank you for your continued dedication in serving Texas communities through safe, sound, and member-focused credit union operations.
